Image	 The image is a detailed anatomical chart titled "Musculoskeletal System". It features three main illustrations: a full-body view of the muscular system on the left, a full-body view of the skeletal system on the right, and a central longitudinal section of a synovial joint. The muscular system is shown in red, highlighting major muscle groups. The skeletal system is shown in yellowish-brown, detailing the skull, spine, ribs, and limbs. The synovial joint section shows the articulation of bones, including articular cartilage, synovial fluid, and ligaments. A legend in the top right corner identifies symbols used in the diagrams. The chart is densely packed with labels for various anatomical structures.
